

Character: The Grandest Thing in the World

In this text, Marden deals with the axial issue of character. Herein Marden documents those traits essential to those who set high ideals for themselves in seeking the grandest thing in the world. In his words, Character is what determines your value to the world. As there is nothing in the world greater than man, there is nothing greater in man than a strong character. This version is custom-formatted for Kindle and checked for typos. It includes an interactive table of contents.
