

Noontide Sun

For seven long years, Sarah has heard nothing but her betrothed's voice against a perpetual storm. After incurring the wrath of a spiteful Redcoat officer capable of wielding magic, Sarah was separated across centuries from Gabriel, the young man she intended to marry. While Gabriel languishes in a prison where the years pass without aging him, Sarah is trapped in a present that isn't her own with the key that can free him. When the key starts to disintegrate, Sarah is forced into a race against time to rescue the young man she loves before they're both lost to the depths of waning magic.
