

Inspirational Stories of the Homeless: Dignity, Nobility, Decency

Inspirational Stories of the Homeless is a brilliant collection. It demonstrates compassion, love, endurance, and growth of the human spirit where we least expect to find it. Martin Luther King once said: Faith is taking the first step, even when you don't see the whole staircase. The homeless live in an abyss of uncertainty obstructing sight of any staircase. These are stories of the contents of people's character that deserve to be told because they are stories of dignity, nobility and decency that require courage. When a homeless person is viewed it is assumed there is an issue with alcohol, drugs or criminality. When a homeless person's reality excludes these cause and effects, impediments arise; the treatment is no longer tailored to the reality. Furthermore, it is rarely thought to have anything to do with being an adult child of an alcoholic, violence and/or dysfunction. As a result, for those who are adult children of alcoholics it becomes an inadvertent repeat or victimization through alcohol. Considerable segments of the homeless population are adult children of alcoholism, violence and/or dysfunction. It is certainly more the norm than the exception. This realization fueled my enthusiasm for this project. This book presents no cause and effects, diagnostics or least of all solutions. They are stories of the virtue of endurance under incredible odds; endurance of spirituality, generosity and sometimes even of peace in the midst of dire brutality. The compassion of the human spirit is a miracle in itself. For the adult child of an alcoholic who has never experienced safety, comfort or nurture of what most define as home it is reasonable it would be challenging to create that which has never been modeled. Dignity, nobility, and decency creates honor. These are stories of honor from the hearts of those with no-where to live.
