

Mujeres de Temple (Spanish Edition)

Todas las Mujeres de Temple merecen nuestra admiración y nuestro respeto. Mas, para mi, el gran merito de este libro es el de haber dado la palabra a mujeres, que sin el, nunca habrian podido hablar de sus vivencias y transmitir las, y confieso que los testimonios de estas mujeres tan sencillas me han emocionado mucho. Es importante tener en la mente que la Historia no se escribe unicamente con datos y nombres conocidos. Son tambien hombres y mujeres anonimas las que la escriben, cada una en su lugar, sin dejar desviar su conciencia segun las circunstancias. Estas mujeres han dejado una huella contrastada por la resolucion de situaciones dramaticas, peligrosas, complejas e insolitas a las que todas ellas hicieron frente con valor, rectitud y honestidad por sus convicciones y amor. Sara Berenguer Laosa (Barcelona, 1919). Hija de obreros, en julio de 1936, al estallar la revolucion que cambio el signo del golpe fascista en Barcelona, ocupara diversos cargos en la CNT-FAI militancia que alternara con labores de alfabetizacion, como maestra en el Ateneo Cultural de Les Corts y actividades culturales de las Juventudes Libertarias. En el transcurso de la guerra se incorpora a la Seccion del Combatiente de la S.I.A. (Solidaridad Internacional Antifascista). Forma parte de varias delegaciones de Mujeres Libres, que visitan a los milicianos el frente y los Hospitales de Sangre y es elegida para ocupar el secretariado de propaganda regional de la organizacion. A fines de enero de 1939 abandona Barcelona y parte al exilio que duraria 37 años. Poco despues, su companero, Jesus Guillen, se reunira con ella y juntos militarán en el clandestino Movimiento Libertario Espanol y en la Resistencia Francesa. Madre de cuatro hijos: Germinal, Sara, Eliseo y Helenia, y de formacion autodidacta, Sara tiene publicados diversos libros en castellano, catalan y frances. Sara Berenguer Laosa (Barcelona, 1919 Montad, Francia, 2010), the daughter of an anarchist militant (Francisco Berenguer, her father, was killed on the Aragon front fighting with Los Aguiluchos) was a leading figure in the Spanish anarchist Free Women movement Mujeres Libres. After the Events of May 1937, in which she played a part, she was involved in various industrial committees of the CNT and in the Combatant Section of Solidaridad Internacional Antifascista (SIA), regularly visiting the front lines. At the end of 1938 she was elected secretary of the regional committee of Mujeres Libres. After the Francoist victory Sara escaped to France where she was interned for a time by the French. During WWII she and her partner, Jesus Guillen, moved to Bram, near Carcassone, where they were members of the clandestine Resistance groups operating in the Black Mountain region. After the Liberation, Sara (who was made a Chevalier of the Legion d'honneur for her role in the Resistance) continued to provide logistical support for the anti-Francoist resistance groups until Francos death in 1975, as well as editing Mujeres Libres.
