

The Supreme Court Judicial Internship Program

THE JUDICIAL INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

Supreme Court of the United States

The Judicial Internship Program at the Supreme Court offers advanced undergraduates and graduating seniors who have interests in law, management, and social sciences a unique opportunity to gain exposure to the field of judicial administration through work in the Office of the Counselor to the Chief Justice. The Program strives to offer its participants an experience that transcends that of other opportunities available to undergraduates. Its location within the country's highest court, combined with the intimacy of having only two Judicial Interns each term creates an environment of substantial responsibility, learning, and collegiality. Interns work eight-hour days, five days a week. Thus, other employment is not feasible. Judicial Interns perform several routine but important office tasks, which include summarizing news articles and preparing memoranda and correspondence. Interns also conduct background research for speeches and briefings provided to visiting foreign dignitaries. Additionally, interns may participate in the diverse research projects conducted by the Supreme Court Fellow and the Counselor. These projects require interns to gather, assemble and synthesize information from a wide range of sources. Such assignments demand experience with office and library resources, the ability to work under time constraints, strict attention to detail, creative thinking, and editorial skills. Office research is completely unrelated to the case work of the Supreme Court. Interns do not work on cases pending before the Court or with the Justices. Circumstances permitting and with approval, interns may also take advantage of the Court's extensive resources to work on their own academic or other research projects.
