

Winchester Divided

The besieged city of Winchester, Virginia, is the backdrop to this fascinating civilian drama of the American Civil War. Julia Chase and Laura Lee are two vocal and passionate Winchester women, who live, under siege, in the same city. One is a diehard Southerner, and the other a firm supporter of the Union. Author Michael G. Mahon presents the diaries of these two women, and juxtaposes their hopes and fears for the future, and the impact of the war on their daily lives. This is an invaluable insight into the impact of the Civil War on populations directly affected by the fighting, made all the more significant and poignant by the polarised beliefs of these two women.
