

The Vineyard of Pleasant Hills

The area called Pleasant Hills is a beautiful location in the District of Columbia. It has been forgotten in past years because the Soldiers Home occupied a vast part of this land tract. Also, the area is now changing. Large pieces of property are being divided and sold. In a few more years people will not even guess that this was once a group of estates in a country area. . . . Pleasant Hills was the dwelling place of many famous people and a site which attracted celebrities of every type. Presidents, senators, architects, judges, lawyers, colonels, businessmen, even royalty, enjoyed the calm and beauty of this land tract. What was perhaps a simple purchase on the part of the White family [in the early 18th century], developed into a setting which was central to the shaping of the United States.
